It must be said that historically the relations between Great Britain and the European Union have never been so idyllic, or that at least this idyll has not been constant over time: it seems ironic that the first politician to propose a union among the European states was Winston Churchill who had this intuition in the immediate post-war period, with the will to emerge from the violence of the Second World War, in the name of a political and economic stability of the European continent, an idea shared by politicians at that time, and which became soon reality.

Fortunately, however, non-British citizens living and working in England will retain the same rights they had previously. The point still open and the most difficult to dissolve in divorce is that of the border between Eire and Northern Ireland. To avoid a return of a wall, a real border between the Republic of Ireland and Belfast, which is part of the United Kingdom, the EU demands that Ulster remain in the single market and in the customs union.

Not only in Italy, also the countries of Eastern Europe, Hungary, Austria and others are not convinced of EU interference in their political management and do not have as their priority the permanence in the Union. The meaning of Brexit is not just technical: the UK's exit from the EU has an impact not only on the British but on the whole world economy.

The signal launched by the English people calls into question the project Europe and its functioning and gives new life to all the Eurosceptic parties. The meaning of the word Brexit refers to the exit of the United Kingdom from the European Union and derives from the union of two English words: "Britain" (United Kingdom) and "exit" (exit).

Relations between the EU and England have always been undecided, since the accession in 1973 to the European Economic Community by the English State, which has always badly digested in particular the continental interference in the regulation of the British internal economy. This continuous swing in relationships has then resulted in the Brexit, the result of a political and social discontent widespread in reality in other countries of the Union, see also in Italy or Spain

These two names are important in the suppression of slavery. One was a writer, Harriet Beecher Stowe. In 1857 she published "Uncle Tom's cabin", showing how slavery meant cruelty. The second name was Abraham Lincoln, a poor boy who studied hard and gained political power. He had always thought of slavery as an evil. The slavery question was one of the causes of the Civil War. The second cause derived from it: the right or not of Southern States to leave the Union of States, govern themselves and keep their slaves. In 1861, the Southern States declared that they were non longer part of the Union.

Brexit is a term coined by the media in the wake of the meaning of Grexit, in vogue last summer, a term that indicated the exit of Greece from the EU. The now former Prime Minister David Cameron was convinced to fight the super power of the European Union and calling for more trade and monetary rights and protections for the United Kingdom, disadvantaged as not a member of the monetary union.

In order for the United Kingdom to leave the European Union there was a need for the activation of Article 50 of the Lisbon Treaty, which gives the country that wants to leave the EU two years to agree the terms of the split. Theresa May triggered this process on March 29, 2017 - consequently, the UK is expected to leave the EU by the summer of 2019, based on the timetable agreed during the negotiations.

David Cameron, his chancellor George Osborne and many other high-level figures who were siding to stay in the EU had foreseen an immediate economic crisis if the United Kingdom voted to leave. House prices would have fallen, there would have been a recession with a sharp rise in unemployment - an emergency budget and heavy spending cuts would have been necessary.
